Idea is a beautiful gift Desiring an idea is like a bait on a hook
And if you catch an idea that you love, it is a beautiful beautiful day
And you write that idea down so you won't forget it.
And that idea that you caught might just be a fragment of the whole whatever it is that you're working on, but now you have even more bait

Thinking of that small fragment, that little fish will bring in more and they'll come in and hook on. And more and more come in and pretty soon you might have a script, or a chair, or a painting, or an idea of a painting.

More often than not, small fragments. I like to think of it as in the other room the puzzle is all together. But they keep flipping in just one piece at a time.
